Foreword

“As long-term investors with concentrated positions, active stewardship is an important component of our investment approach. We see stewardship as a valuable tool to protect and enhance our clients’ capital, and as such take our responsibilities in this area seriously.”

This is Franchise Partners’ fourth annual Stewardship Code Report. In this report, we set out how we implement the twelve principles of the UK Stewardship Code 2020 and describe the key outcomes during the 2024 calendar year. This report applies to all our assets under management.

As long-term investors with concentrated positions, active stewardship is an important component of our investment approach. We see stewardship as a valuable tool to protect and enhance our clients’ capital, and as such take our responsibilities in this area seriously. Our stewardship work is carried out entirely within our investment team for this reason.

Like our approach to incorporating ESG considerations into our investment process, our approach to stewardship is returns led. This means we focus on financially material topics that impact a company’s quality and valuation.

We continued our active stewardship in 2024. We engaged with over half of portfolio companies on ESG topics and met with 100% of our portfolio companies either virtually or in person.¹ This included several significant engagements, including with a prestige beauty company, a tobacco company and an agriculture company. We share details of some of our engagements with portfolio companies in Principles 7 and 9, and we share a selection of voting examples in Principle 12. We also continued to undertake in-depth investment research, which informs our ongoing and future engagement work.

In addition, we continued our efforts to address systemic risks and to promote well-functioning financial markets. This includes our climate-related and financial reporting-related work, which we discuss in Principle 4.

We remain mindful that achieving positive outcomes through engagement with portfolio companies, and addressing broader systemic risks, can be a gradual and uncertain process, and we may not always be successful in our engagement aims. Nonetheless, there have been several positive developments, as we describe in Principles 4, 7 and 9.

We also remain committed to providing high-quality ESG and stewardship information to our clients. We describe our reporting in more detail under Principle 6.

Looking ahead, our priorities are to continue our active stewardship of our clients’ capital and undertake in-depth ESG research to improve our understanding of the quality and appropriate valuation of the companies in our clients’ portfolios. We will also further refine our investment toolkit as needed, as well as our communication of our ESG and stewardship work.

Purpose and governance: Principle 1

Signatories' purpose, investment beliefs, strategy, and culture enable stewardship that creates long-term value for clients and beneficiaries leading to sustainable benefits for the economy, the environment and society.

Context

Purpose

Our purpose is to deliver attractive, long-term investment returns for our clients while taking as little commercial and valuation risk as possible. Our enduring client relationships and long-term investment results are the markers we use to help measure our success in achieving this purpose.

Business model and strategy

Independent Franchise Partners, LLP is an active, global equity manager established in June 2009 as an owner-managed partnership.

The Firm's business model and strategy is designed to support our purpose of delivering attractive investment returns for our clients. We believe the most effective way to achieve this is through a focused, specialist investment management partnership. The Firm is managed by its five partners, four of whom are investors. The fifth partner is our Chief Operating Officer, who is responsible for the non-investment activities of the Firm. Our partnership structure supports a focus on a single investment discipline; directly aligns our interests with our clients' portfolio returns; and ensures ownership stability and the consistency of commercial priorities.

We focus exclusively on a single investment discipline – Franchise investing – that is available to institutional clients. The Franchise investment approach is discussed below. We offer three portfolios: Global Franchise (global equities), Global Franchise II (global equities excluding tobacco) and US Franchise (US equities). This focus on a single investment discipline ensures all our investment resources are dedicated to identifying and monitoring high-quality Franchise companies.

We have deliberately capped the size of the assets we manage to ensure we do not compromise our ability to deliver attractive returns and high-quality client service. We managed $20.7bn on behalf of our clients as at 31 December 2024. In addition, we have chosen to share the benefits of scale with all our clients by lowering our management fee over time. Along with the cap on capacity, this helps align the Firm's interests with our clients' interests.

One of the key organising principles when we established the Firm was to keep it small and manageable. The Firm had 32 employees across portfolio management, trading, investment tools, client service, operations, legal and compliance at the end of December 2024. Our small size allows us to concentrate on what matters most to our clients: investment research, portfolio management, stewardship, trading and client service. To enable our investment and client service focus, we partner with best-in-class service providers across a range of functions including fund administration and technology.

Investment beliefs

As long-term investors, our investment goals are inherently aligned with the principles of the Stewardship Code. First, our long-term time horizon requires us to consider a broad range of factors that may impact the durability of a business. This naturally leads us to incorporate ESG factors, many of which are long-term in nature. Further, frequent and active engagement with our portfolio companies is a crucial component of our buy-and-hold strategy. This allows us to test our investment thesis through regular meetings with our portfolio companies and to advocate for change at companies where we believe it is in our clients' best interests. We describe our approach to engagement and voting in more detail in Principles 9 to 12.

The Franchise investment philosophy

The Franchise investment approach is founded on the belief that a concentrated portfolio of exceptionally high-quality companies, whose primary competitive advantage is supported by a dominant intangible asset, will earn attractive long-term returns with less than average volatility. These characteristics are typically found in companies producing branded consumer goods, pharmaceuticals, media and publishing, and in the software and information services sectors. Similarly, these qualities are generally not found in capital-hungry industries such as oil and gas exploration and production, and utilities.

We are highly selective about what qualifies a business to be a Franchise, and therefore consider all financially material risks and opportunities when making this judgement, including analysing ESG factors. We take a broad view of materiality and consider how ESG factors impact a company's brand, reputation, and its appeal to employees. These are hard to quantify but can be important factors in maintaining the health of a company's intangible assets. Franchise portfolios are concentrated and typically contain between 20 and 40 stocks.

Once identified, we believe a patient, buy-and-hold approach is the best way to allow these companies to compound wealth for shareholders over the long term. We will hold investments as long as the company's valuation remains attractive and it continues to demonstrate strong franchise quality characteristics. This buy-and-hold approach is reflected in low annual turnover typically in the range of 15-25%. The weighted average holding period is more than eight years for companies in the Global Franchise portfolio,² and a fifth of all companies held firmwide have been held for over fifteen years.³

Culture and values

The Firm's mission statement sets out our purpose and the values we uphold:

Our mission is to build trusted, enduring partnerships with our clients. We will continually invest in our Firm to deliver exceptional Franchise investment results and an outstanding client experience.

To achieve this mission, we have deliberately structured the Firm as a focused, independent partnership. This is designed to foster a client-focused culture and set of values. Our cap on assets under management further supports this mindset. We are not beholden to asset gathering targets, which allows us to focus purely on investment returns and quality client service. It also enables us to invest in the best people, technology and tools without intervention from a third party.

Activity

Business model and strategy

Our independence, simple business model and partnership structure allow us to remain focused on delivering attractive investment returns and high-quality client service.

We have invested in the human capital, tools and resources that we need to ensure effective stewardship without external constraints. We discuss the development of our ESG integration process, toolkit and resources in Principles 2 and 7. Further, we have been able to advocate assertively in our engagements with companies and industry bodies without being concerned about conflicts of interest or external pressures. We describe these engagements in more detail in Principles 4, 7 and 9.

Investment beliefs

Our core investment beliefs are the same today as when we founded the Firm in 2009. Indeed, they have remained consistent since we started managing the strategy at Morgan Stanley Investment Management (MSIM) in 2003. However, just as we have evolved our toolkit over time in other areas such as accounting quality, we have also evolved our approach to ESG risks over the last five years. In 2020 the investment team developed a set of proprietary tools to enable us to incorporate ESG considerations into our investment decision-making process and our stewardship activities. We describe these in more detail in Principle 7.

In 2024 we refined these tools and processes further by continuing to focus our in-depth ESG research projects on a smaller number of ESG factors in greater detail, rather than structure the projects around individual companies.

Culture and values

We continue to promote a client-focused culture. Our interactions with clients are valuable opportunities to learn more about what is important to them and how we can serve them better. We typically try to meet with clients or their consultants at least annually to discuss their portfolio and seek any feedback. We also provide a range of reporting to help clients understand what is happening at the Firm and in their portfolios. This reporting is discussed in more detail in Principle 6.

In 2020 we engaged a third party to undertake a survey of a number of our clients and their consultants, as well as former clients. This survey led us to make a number of changes, most notably reducing our investment management fees for all clients, evolving how we integrate ESG considerations into our investment decision-making, and improving our communication of ESG by developing a range of ESG reporting and appointing an ESG specialist within our client team. Our client communication is discussed further in Principle 6.

In 2024 we repeated this survey. The results demonstrated that clients have recognised these enhancements, including in relation to our ESG and stewardship work. We were even more pleased that our clients continue to value their experience with Franchise Partners. The survey also highlighted that there is more we can do to continue to improve our clients' experience. This includes continuing to increase the visibility of all members of the investment team, providing clients with greater opportunities to engage with the Firm, and providing additional content and Franchise insights. We intend to address these and other areas of client feedback over the next few years.

In relation to the Firm's employees, we strive to maintain a supportive culture and work environment that promotes teamwork and upholds the highest standards of ethics and integrity. As such, we promote a culture where all staff are treated with dignity and respect.

As part of the Firm's culture of continuous improvement, we hold 360-degree evaluations for all partners and employees at least every two years. In late 2023 we undertook 360-degree reviews for everyone at the Firm. In 2024 we undertook further 360-reviews for the partners only, and we encouraged all members of the Firm to provide feedback on the partners' leadership and demonstration of the Firm's core values.

Outcome

We believe our purpose, investment beliefs, strategy and culture have been effective in serving our clients' best interests. We measure our success in this through the strength of our relationships with our clients, and our long-term investment performance.

Many of our client relationships are over ten years old and our first client, which invested on the day we launched the Firm in 2009, remains a client over sixteen years' later. We believe this demonstrates the effectiveness of our client-centric business model, culture and values in meeting the needs of our clients.

The Franchise strategy has generated attractive returns compared to the broader equity market. The Global Franchise strategy has generated a total return of 630% in USD net of fees, compared to the MSCI World (Net) Index total return of 360% since 28 February 2005,⁴ including returns from the investment team's time at MSIM. This translates into an annualised return of 10.5% for Global Franchise and 8.0% for the MSCI World (Net) Index. These returns have been achieved with lower volatility than the broader equity market. The annualised standard deviation for Global Franchise was 13.8% versus 15.5% for the index. This return also ranks favourably with other active equity managers. On a risk-adjusted basis, the strategy ranks in the top eight percent of eVestment's Global Large Cap Equity peer group.⁵

We believe this attractive performance demonstrates the effectiveness of our investment beliefs and strategy in creating long-term value for our clients.

⁴ The investment returns provided reflect returns for the Morgan Stanley Global Franchise Equity Composite for the period 28 February 2005 to 31 May 2009 and for the Independent Franchise Partners, LLP Global Franchise Equity Composite from 1 June 2009 to 31 December 2024. Past investment returns are no guarantee of future results. The returns are shown net of investment advisory fees, are quoted in USD and include the reinvestment of dividends and income. Net returns are shown after the impact of transaction costs and management fees, applied using the fee that would have been effective at the time. The impact of fees is applied on a daily, time-weighted, geometric basis. Long-term return data has been provided for informational purposes only as an indication of the investment team's record in managing Global Franchise portfolios at MSIM. The comparison index is the MSCI World (Net) Index. The composition and volatility of the index shown may vary materially from the securities comprising the portfolio. Please refer to the disclosure at the end of this document for further detail about the composite and the benchmark.

⁵ Source: eVestment. From 28 February 2005 to 31 December 2024. The eVestment Global Large Cap Equity peer group comprises Global, ACWI, or Global ex-Japan Equity products that primarily invest in large capitalisation stocks regardless of the style (growth, value, or core) focus. The Global Large Cap Equity peer group included 125 products for the period shown.

Purpose and governance: Principle 2

Signatories' governance, resources and incentives support stewardship.

Activity

Business model and governance to enable effective stewardship

We have designed our business model and governance structures to support our sole focus on long-term investment returns and client relationships.

The Firm is an owner-managed partnership. Four of the five partners are members of the investment team. The fifth partner is our Chief Operating Officer, who is responsible for the non-investment activities of the Firm.

The partners form the Firm's governing body, and all significant business decisions are made by the partners, with input from the Firm's employees. This partnership structure promotes long-term stability, consistency in our commercial priorities, and an investment-first mindset. Similarly, we have deliberately limited our assets under management (AUM), which ensures we focus on investment performance for our existing client base rather than asset gathering.

Our independence means we are unrestricted in our ability to allocate resources towards achieving our investment goals and serving our clients.

Finally, our focus on a single investment approach ensures we are consistent in our engagement objectives with portfolio companies.

Investment team

Our investment team had nine members with an average of sixteen years' finance industry experience at the end of December 2024. We believe this is a well-resourced investment team in the context of our concentrated investment portfolios (which held a total of 33 stocks across all three strategies)⁶ and highly selective investment universe.

We see stewardship as an important tool to help us achieve our purpose of delivering attractive long-term investment returns for our clients, and we invest appropriate time and resources in this element of our investment process. The most important example of this is that we have deliberately allocated responsibility for stewardship and ESG integration to the investors. We do not outsource any aspect of our ESG incorporation or stewardship to a third party, just as we do not outsource any other element of our investment process.

This means that the lead investor for each portfolio company is responsible for identifying, assessing and incorporating financially material ESG risks and opportunities into their assessment of franchise quality, valuation and ultimately the investment decision. The lead investor is also responsible for voting their companies' proxies and conducting engagement work. The investors are supported by an ESG analyst who is a member of the investment team and provides specialist support and expertise.

Below we provide short biographies of Karim Ladha, the partner and investor who has direct responsibility for our ESG work, and Lottie Meggitt, the Firm's ESG analyst.

Karim Ladha, CFA: Karim joined the Firm in May 2011 and has eighteen years of investment experience. Prior to joining the Firm, Karim worked at Neptune Investment Management in London. Previously, Karim performed both equity and fixed income research at Morgan Stanley Investment Management, including working with the Franchise team. Karim has a B.A. in Philosophy, Politics and Economics from St John's College, University of Oxford and an MBA from the University of Chicago, and is a CFA® Charterholder.

Lottie Meggitt, CFA: Lottie joined the Firm in June 2020 and has eleven years of industry experience. Lottie was previously at Newton Investment Management where she led their ESG integration and engagement efforts in the consumer sectors. Lottie has an M.A. in Classics from the University of Cambridge, a Masters in Finance from London Business School, and is a CFA® Charterholder.

Investment team diversity and experience

One member of the investment team has two or more ethnicities, and the remaining team members identify as white. Two of the nine members of the team are women and seven are men.

Diversity of thought is important in investing, and we have actively sought team members with different cognitive backgrounds, from different industries and with different levels of work experience. For example, our investment team has a variety of academic backgrounds, ranging from English literature and Russian, to accounting and finance. Our last three hires have each brought different types of experience to the team. The most recent hire joined the team with fifteen years' experience, including in portfolio management and analyst roles. Prior to this, recent hires to the investment team came from investment banking, and venture capital and technology backgrounds.

We aim to attract candidates from diverse backgrounds in a variety of ways, including through the use of specialist recruiters, ensuring a diverse pool of candidates, and by ensuring our interview panel is diverse.

We also recognise that diversity has been a challenge for the finance industry more broadly. We have therefore been active participants in the Girls Are Investors (GAIN) and 10,000 Black Interns programmes to support and strengthen the pipeline for more diverse candidates at a grassroots level.

Alignment

We believe stewardship is integral to the success of a long-term buy-and-hold investment approach, therefore the members of the investment team are well-incentivised to fulfil the Firm's stewardship priorities to the best of their ability.

Further, compensation, and specifically above-base compensation, is determined for the members of the investment team by investment performance, as well as factors such as contribution to the overall development of the Firm, maintaining the Firm's culture and ethical standards, and the enhancement of the Franchise investment toolkit. Our evaluation of an investor's contribution incorporates an assessment of the quality of their entire research work, which includes the incorporation of financially material ESG factors and engagement activities.

Within the partnership, our compensation structure ensures the direct, long-term alignment of our partners' interests with the interests of our clients. All partners co-invest at least one third of their after-tax annual remuneration alongside clients in the Franchise portfolios. These co-investments accumulate for their full length of service and promote substantial financial alignment with our clients. Finally, each partner's investment is subject to a staggered five-year release period after their departure. This means that it is in the partners' interests to invest in the Firm in a way that protects its long-term sustainability.

Investment in people, systems, research and analysis

We believe it is important to invest in our people, and strongly support the ongoing education and development of our employees. The Firm offers all staff full financial reimbursement for the costs associated with further education and training. A significant proportion of the Firm's employees have taken advantage of this reimbursement programme, with eight people undertaking post-graduate degrees and other industry qualifications in business, finance, data science and cybersecurity since the launch of the Firm.

Our investment process is built on proprietary, in-house research and stewardship, therefore investing in our toolkit, data and information sets is vital. Our independence means the investment team has full discretion in this investment.

We subscribe to a broad variety of research from over 60 providers, including traditional sell-side houses, specialist research firms and external consulting firms. We source data from over 30 different providers on a range of subjects from employee satisfaction to mobile app usage. One full-time employee is dedicated to developing and managing our investment tools and data sets, and is supported by the equivalent of five full-time external data resources. The level of investment in our research, trading and investment toolkit is material for a firm of our size and represents the Firm's second largest expense.

We apply the same approach to our stewardship providers. We obtain data, research and expertise from best-in-class third parties to inform our stewardship work. We discuss these third parties below.

Arkadiko Partners	Arkadiko Partners is a consultancy focused on implementing ESG and stewardship within the investment process. Arkadiko provides a valuable external viewpoint and industry knowledge.
ESG data	Our primary environmental data providers are MSCI ESG Research, the Science Based Targets initiative (SBTi) and the Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP). We source our social and governance metrics from MSCI ESG, Bloomberg and Institutional Shareholder Services (ISS). We also make use of a variety of sector-specific raw data. We use all of these data points to inform our ESG analysis and engagement work.
ESG scores	We access headline ESG scores through Bloomberg. We also make use of scores and rankings from specialist groups such as the Tobacco Transformation Index, the CDP and the Access to Nutrition Index.
Proxy research	We obtain proxy research from ISS. We use this research to inform our voting decisions, but it does not dictate how we vote.
External research	This includes ESG research from sell-side brokers and smaller, specialist firms.

Industry consultants

We harness the insights of industry specialists through consultants and our own networks. This includes individuals from industry, academia and independent research groups.

Outcome

We believe our current governance structures and resources provide the oversight, experience and expertise required to fulfil our stewardship priorities effectively within the investment team. In 2024 our investment team voted on 480 proposals at 30 general meetings. We engaged with companies 42 times on ESG matters during the year, and engaged on ESG topics with 58% of the 33 portfolio companies held firmwide at 31 December 2024. We provide examples of these engagements, voting activities and their outcomes in Principles 7, 9 and 12.

We are committed to the ongoing development of our investment process and stewardship work to ensure we achieve our purpose of generating long-term attractive returns for our clients. An important example of this has been the development of our ESG toolkit, which we set out in Principle 7. These developments have enabled us to broaden our stewardship activities to include engagement on climate risk management. We describe our climate engagement work in Principle 4.

Finally, we continued to strengthen our client reporting in 2024 to provide greater transparency to clients of our stewardship activities. This included the release of our first full Task Force on Climate-related Financials Disclosures (TCFD) Entity report and TCFD Product reports. We also published our 2023 ESG and Stewardship annual report in early 2024, as well our 2023 UK Stewardship Code report.

Purpose and governance: Principle 3

Signatories manage conflicts of interest to put the best interests of clients and beneficiaries first.

Context

The Firm's business model and ownership structure help to minimise exposure to conflicts of interest. However, as an asset management firm with multiple clients, we nonetheless face a variety of potential conflicts of interest. These conflicts relate to our trading and investment activities, our clients and our staff.

Overall, there are two tenets which underly our approach to managing these conflicts:

- The Firm should act in the best interests of clients at all times.
- All clients should be treated fairly.

Below, we describe our approach to managing key conflicts in more detail. A detailed summary of our conflicts of interest policy is available on our website.

Ownership structure and business model

Our independent partnership structure minimises the Firm's exposure to conflicts of interest. We are not affiliated with any other investment management company, fund distributor or bank. This allows us to focus completely on delivering attractive returns for our clients and eliminates many of the competing interests faced by larger, more diversified or distribution-driven organisations.

One example of how this ownership structure enables us to put clients' interests first is the cap we have placed on the Firm's assets. While this limits the Firm's income, it helps to ensure a high standard of client service and the sustainability of investment results.

Our independence means we are able to conduct our corporate engagement and proxy voting in a manner aligned with the best interests of our clients. We are not subject to the interests or sensitivities of a third-party organisation.

Finally, as discussed in Principle 2, the partners' remuneration framework aligns them with our clients' interests, which naturally minimises conflicts of interests with our clients.

Clients

We believe strongly that all clients should be treated fairly. Therefore, we do not accept any side letters or terms that would give preferential treatment to one client over another. Over time we have lowered our management fee to the benefit of all clients.

Finally, we consider all strategies when making an investment decision. All accounts within the same strategy are managed in line with each other. Further, under the Firm's allocation policy, all trades are allocated on a pro rata basis as standard.

Voting and engagement

Our voting and stewardship policies set out our approach to managing conflicts of interest in our voting and engagement work. As previously mentioned, our independence enables us to vote and engage with companies in a manner consistent with long-term investment performance, not the interests of a third party.

We do not currently manage assets for any of the companies in our investment universe. This eliminates conflicts that could emerge as a result of voting at our clients' AGMs. Further, as our sole business is asset management, we do not encounter conflicts of interest through providing additional services to the companies in our investment universe.

Staff

Our gifts and entertainment policies ensure our investment, trading and outsourcing decisions are made in the best interests of clients and are not unduly influenced by third parties. We require staff to obtain pre-approval for any external directorships or business interests to ensure that any conflicts are identified and appropriately managed. Finally, staff are not permitted to trade personally in securities held in the Franchise portfolios or the universe of securities in which we invest.

Outcome

We did not identify any material conflicts of interest in 2024.

Where conflicts arise, they are managed on a case-by-case basis. The partners, general counsel, compliance and other support and control functions will determine the appropriate course of action. These actions could include:

- The Firm is unable to manage the conflict and should decline to act.
- The Firm can manage the conflict and put in place appropriate internal procedures to remediate the recurrence of the conflict.
- The conflict can be eliminated by a change in business practice or removal of the competing interest.

Purpose and governance: Principle 4

Signatories identify and respond to market-wide and systemic risks to promote a well-functioning financial system.

Activity

Our long-term time horizon means we must apply an equally long-term approach to the management of systemic risks that may impact our portfolio companies and our own business.

Within our investment portfolio, the investment team identifies market-wide and systemic risks primarily through our bottom-up, proprietary research work and our regular engagement with company management. These potential risks, and how we intend to address them, are discussed and agreed in our weekly investment meetings and as part of our research feedback process.

Other areas of the Firm such as trading, compliance and legal also play an important role in identifying and managing market-wide and systemic risks that may impact our investments and the Firm. These teams identify and monitor potential risks through a wide range of sources. These include industry publications, brokers, consultants, external legal and compliance firms, trusted service provider relationships, participation and attendance at industry events, and other asset managers. The teams typically raise and discuss material risks with the broader business team and the Firm's Chief Operating Officer at twice monthly business meetings, on an ad hoc basis with one of the partners, or with all of the partners at the quarterly partners meeting, depending on the nature of the risk. Further, on a quarterly basis, the partners and Compliance Manager undertake a structured review process to identify and assess the Firm's material risks, including regulatory and market-wide risks.

We manage systemic risks in two ways: direct engagement with companies, and contribution to a variety of industry initiatives that promote well-functioning financial markets. In both company and industry engagements, we focus our efforts on the topics that are most aligned with our returns-led focus, our investment approach and our business model.

We are a small firm by number of employees, nonetheless, we actively contribute to industry-wide initiatives that help us in our purpose of delivering attractive investment returns for our clients. An important component of our work in this area is to represent smaller firms and their clients so that these debates are not dominated by the larger firms in the industry.

Two key themes in managing systemic risks

Climate change and financial reporting are the two primary themes of our current work to address systemic risks. These are discussed below.

Climate change

Through our investment research we identified climate change as a long-term risk to our investments and the financial system as a whole. We have developed a climate risk framework to guide our analysis and inform our voting and engagement work. We provide the framework in full in Principle 7. We have used this framework to help us identify candidates for engagement.

To support our climate engagement work we became a signatory to the Net Zero Asset Managers initiative (NZAMI) and set two portfolio engagement targets in 2022.

1. 100% of the Firm's AUM⁷ to have a science-based emissions reduction target by 2030.
2. 100% of the Firm's AUM⁸ to disclose to the CDP by 2025.

Consistent with our investment approach, we will seek to achieve these targets through active and persistent engagement with our portfolio companies, rather than through divestment or exclusion. We will also not construct the portfolios to maximise performance against them. Further, we will always approach these engagements through a materiality lens and take a pragmatic approach to emissions reduction targets.

In 2024 we engaged with three companies on emissions targets and CDP disclosure on a one-on-one basis.

Financial reporting

Our Firm and the broader investment community rely on high-quality disclosure and transparency. We therefore believe promoting this is in our clients' best interests.

Our investment team, through its investment research work, identified certain financial accounting and reporting areas where the quality of company disclosures could be improved and standardised. In response, Terence Fisher, a member of the investment team and an accounting specialist, joined the International Accounting Standards Board's (IASB) Capital Markets Advisory Committee (CMAC) in 2019. The committee's role is to provide the IASB with investors' views on the development of accounting standards. The committee meets three times a year. It provides input throughout the standard setting process, from early stages through to the post implementation review, while also advising on areas for future work.

We have chosen to contribute our time to this committee because it directly influences the decision making of the IASB and therefore represents an important avenue to help improve the quality of financial disclosure that investors receive. Participating in this process means we can help draw attention to, and give our perspective on, the areas of accounting and financial disclosure that we believe require improvement.

⁸ Excluding cash holdings.

During 2024 Terence helped to shape the CMAC's response on a range of accounting topics. This included providing input on:

1. The IASB's comprehensive review of the accounting for intangible assets. In our view this is an area of accounting that requires significant improvement: Intangible assets are crucial to companies' business models today, and we think that current disclosure requirements do not provide users with sufficient information.
2. IFRS⁹ 18 "Presentation and Disclosure in Financial Statements" which was issued in April 2024 and aims to create more consistency and comparability across companies by providing guidance on what companies can adjust when preparing adjusted earnings. Terence advised on the examples included in the standards illustrating how to present adjusted earnings.
3. The exposure draft for the accounting and disclosure of Goodwill and Impairments in relation to Business Combinations. Terence highlighted areas for improvement, including amendments to help investors better understand the impact of M&A on the cash flow statement.

Contribution to industry initiatives

We contribute to a variety of industry initiatives that help to promote well-functioning financial markets and pursue outcomes in our clients' best interests. These are listed below, in alphabetical order.

Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP)	We support the CDP's efforts to improve corporate disclosure on material climate change risks and opportunities, and provide a financial contribution for our membership. We use companies' CDP disclosure and scores in our risk assessments. We have found collaborative engagement with the CDP to be an effective method to help improve climate risk disclosure at our portfolio companies. While we did not undertake any collaborative engagements through the CDP in 2024, we participated in the CDP's non-disclosure campaigns in both 2021 and 2022.
Diversity and inclusion initiatives	In 2024 we supported three initiatives aimed at improving diversity within the investment industry. Investing is an activity that benefits from diverse viewpoints and perspectives. Two of the programmes aim to increase representation at the early career level. We believe that addressing diversity from the bottom up should help to contribute to the sustainability of the investment industry more broadly. Buy-side Women Mentor/ Mentee programme This programme's mission is to attract, retain and advance female traders. It aims to provide a network for junior traders to meet senior traders, and for female traders to share best practices with each other. Phoebe Nockolds, head of our trading team, participated in the programme as both a mentor and a mentee in 2024.

⁹ IFRS is the International Financial Reporting Standards.

	10,000 Black Interns This programme offers paid internships in the financial services sector to Black students studying in the UK to help improve racial diversity within investment teams. In summer 2021 our investment team hosted three interns from the programme at different stages of their academic careers. In 2024 we hosted two interns from the programme. During their time with us, the interns developed their own investment recommendations using our quality and valuation framework. They received support and feedback from the investment team at every stage of the process. We believe the programme helped further develop the interns' research and analytical skills, and we received positive feedback. We also support the 10,000 Black Interns initiative with a financial contribution. Girls Are Investors (GAIN) GAIN aims to promote diversity within the fund management industry by increasing the number of female applicants for entry-level investment roles. GAIN seeks to achieve this by providing female students with role models who speak to them about the opportunities and benefits of a career in the investment industry. In 2022 our investment team hosted two interns from the programme. In late 2024 our investment team held several interviews with students to select candidates for the summer 2025 internship programme. In addition, in 2024 a member of our investment team mentored a university student undertaking a GAIN internship. We also supported GAIN with a financial contribution.
Independent Investment Management Initiative's (IIMI) ESG group	The IIMI is a group of independent investment boutiques. We are members of this group as it is a helpful forum for knowledge sharing with our peers, including to discuss the challenges and benefits of ESG and stewardship for smaller firms. The Firm's General Counsel, Philip Reed, joined IIMI's board in 2023. In his capacity as a board member, Philip has worked to influence the regulatory reform agenda on a number of topics. These include the UK Financial Conduct Authority's (FCA) Consumer Duty, the regulators' growth and competitiveness agenda, and increasing diversity within the industry. This has involved engagement with the FCA, the Prudential Regulation Authority, a Minister in the Department for Business and Trade, and the Lord Mayor of London.
Investment Association (IA)	The IA is the trade body that represents UK investment management firms. We have chosen to play an active role within a select group of committees as we feel it is important to represent the views of small, independent investment management firms and their clients. The Firm's General Counsel, Philip Reed, is a member of the IA's Trade & Investment Committee and the Advocacy Committee, a sub-committee of the Corporate Affairs Committee. As part of his contribution to the IA, Philip engaged politicians, regulators and peers on items of political policy and regulation relevant to the Firm and the industry. In his work on the Advocacy Committee, Philip has argued consistently for a streamlined approach to the regulation of products and services aimed at the institutional market. In addition, our trading team provided input to the IA on a number of topics in 2024. These included simplifying transaction reporting, responding to the US

	Federal Reserve's proposal to remain open on Bank Holidays, and preparations for T+1 settlement in Europe.
Net Zero Asset Managers initiative (NZAMI)	The Firm is a signatory to NZAMI, an international group of asset managers supporting net zero emissions by 2050. As a signatory, we have developed two portfolio engagement targets to drive improvements in climate risk management at our portfolio companies. We became a signatory in 2022 to formalise our climate engagement work and to signal to our portfolio companies the importance we attach to this topic. In our experience, membership of groups such as NZAMI can increase the likelihood of engagement success. In January 2025 NZAMI announced a temporary pause in order to evaluate the initiative's aims and membership terms. Nonetheless, we continue to engage with companies on managing long-term financially material climate risks.
Trading-related initiatives and events	The Firm has concentrated positions with lengthy holding periods. As such, it is vital for us to engage with both regulators and the industry on market structure topics. We do this in a number of ways. In 2024 these included: • Advocating to simplify Europe's overly complicated transaction reporting, including providing feedback to the FCA as part of its consultation on its new trade reporting requirements. These requirements came into effect in 2024 and we think they reduce unnecessary regulatory burden and cost. • Engaging on the transition to T+1 settlement in Europe via the Investment Association and discussing the topic at industry events. We were pleased when the UK, the European Union and Switzerland formerly agreed to align the shortening of the equity settlement cycle in 2024. This change is expected to take place in 2027. • Proactively meeting with the Investor Forum to discuss potential changes to the regulations governing buybacks by UK companies to ensure they provide value for shareholders. • Participating in a range of industry initiatives and events, including speaking on panels for events organised by CBOE, Rosenblatt Securities, Bloomberg, The Hive, CMX and ITF. At ITF we moderated a round table of industry peers on the biggest problems facing buy-side trading desks today.
UK Investor Forum	Our membership of the Investor Forum provides opportunities for collaborative engagement with UK-based companies. We provide a financial contribution to the Forum as part of our ongoing membership. In 2024 we led a collaborative engagement with other investment managers via the UK Investor Forum, engaging with a leading ESG ratings provider. We encouraged the ESG ratings provider to better capture the benefits of tobacco companies' increasing shift away from producing combustible cigarette products and toward less harmful smoke-free products in its ratings framework. Following this engagement the ESG ratings provider informed us that it has started to incorporate this into its framework, albeit in a very small way. In addition, as mentioned above, our trading team met with the Investor Forum to discuss share buyback mechanisms and their governance to ensure share buybacks provide value for shareholders.
UN Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI)	We support the PRI's mission to bring increased transparency and rigor to responsible investment and we provide a financial contribution to be a member. Membership of the PRI keeps us informed of practices within ESG investing and stewardship. We also recognise that our clients value the transparency and consistent reporting which is enabled by the PRI's reporting process.

Outcome

We have committed a significant amount of resource to try to address systemic risks that may impact our clients' investments and our business. We believe our methods for identifying systemic risks are appropriate given our single investment discipline, the size of our Firm and our simple business structure.

However, assessing the effectiveness of our work is challenging. Many of the initiatives we are involved with are ongoing and complex, and change is likely to be gradual. It can also be very difficult to identify whether a specific initiative has led to regulatory or legislative change. Nonetheless, there have been several positive developments on some of the topics that we, in conjunction with other investors and asset managers, have engaged on during the past few years. These include:

- Climate change

We have seen steady improvements in the climate risk management of some of our portfolio companies. This includes the approval in 2024 of the SBTi targets of one of the companies we have engaged with on this topic. As at the end of December 2024, 65% of companies in the portfolios had emissions reduction targets approved by the SBTi,¹⁰ and 93% disclosed to the CDP.

- Financial reporting

The IASB has announced several amendments to its financial reporting and accounting standards designed to improve disclosure and transparency, which our forensic accounting specialist Terence Fisher has helped shape through his role on the CMAC. This includes the IFRS accounting standard IFRS 18 "Presentation and Disclosure in Financial Statements", which was issued in 2024. This standard aims to create more consistency and comparability across companies by providing guidance on what companies can adjust when preparing adjusted earnings. Terence advised on the examples included in the standards illustrating how to present adjusted earnings. The examples are important in helping inform companies' financial disclosures.

- Trading-related initiatives

In 2024 the FCA's trade reporting requirements came into effect, reducing unnecessary regulatory burden and cost, as discussed above. We were pleased that many of the changes we have supported were adopted. In addition, we were pleased that the UK, the European Union and Switzerland formerly agreed to align the shortening of the equity settlement cycle to T+1, in line with our engagement requests.

¹⁰ This includes a company that has not set an SBTi target. This is because its emissions reduction target is approved by the Exponential Roadmap Initiative, which NZAMI recognises as an approved target.

Purpose and governance: Principle 5

Signatories review their policies, assure their processes and assess the effectiveness of their activities.

Activity

The Firm has three policies that guide our stewardship work. These are:

- ESG integration policy
- Stewardship policy
- Voting policy

We follow the same approach to the review and assurance of our stewardship-related policies as we do with our other policies. Each policy is reviewed annually and approved by the partners. During this process, we consider developments in industry practices, client feedback and regulatory changes. The review is overseen by our compliance function and incorporates a review by our ESG analyst and ESG specialist in the client team. The partners formally approve the policies to ensure senior accountability and oversight. We have adopted this approach because the Firm's small size and simple structure enable the partners to have direct oversight of our stewardship activities.

In addition to this, our proxy voting process is reviewed by external independent auditors as part of our internal controls audit. This audit incorporates a review of ISS's systems to confirm that we have submitted our voting decisions ahead of the relevant deadlines, and that we cast our votes in accordance with the Firm's voting policy.

Each year, we also engage external compliance consultants to undertake a firmwide review through an SEC compliance lens. This includes our ESG integration process and activities.

For our stewardship reporting to clients and regulators, we have made use of external specialists to help advise us on best practices.

All ESG-related marketing communications, such as our annual ESG and Stewardship report and blog posts on our client portal, require a three-level sign off which includes the author of the piece, compliance and a partner. This is to ensure that all information is accurate and we can substantiate the report's content.

We regularly review the effectiveness of our stewardship activities as part of our investment process. For example, all company meetings are discussed in our weekly investment meetings, which provide an opportunity to discuss the progress of ongoing engagements and whether we should escalate the engagement. Further, the partner responsible for ESG will bring any significant ESG and stewardship matters to the attention of the partnership at the weekly partners meetings.

Outcome

In 2024 we reviewed and approved the three policies that guide our stewardship work. As part of this review, we made minor updates to our ESG integration policy to:

- Better reflect the evolution of our ESG research projects, which increasingly focus on a smaller number of ESG factors in greater depth rather than being structured around individual companies.
- Incorporate our culture framework.
- Include a statement on our approach to fossil fuel.

There were no material changes to our Stewardship or Voting policies.

We have in place an ESG engagement tracking process to monitor the progress of our engagements and support our reporting to clients on our engagement work. The investment team's ESG analyst is responsible for recording our ESG engagements with companies, including the type of engagement, the purpose of the engagement and the outcome. All engagements are recorded in the engagement database that we developed in house.

Investment approach: Principle 6

Signatories take account of client and beneficiary needs and communicate the activities and outcomes of their stewardship and investment to them.

Context

The Firm had US$20.7bn in AUM at the end of 2024. We invest solely in listed equities and we only invest in developed markets.

Our client base consists of institutional investors. We manage assets on behalf of clients located in eight jurisdictions. US domiciled clients represent the largest proportion of the Firm's AUM at 38%, followed by Ireland and the UK at 18% and 16% of AUM, respectively.¹¹

Below we provide a geographical breakdown of the Firm's investments as well as a regional breakdown of the Firm's clients.

Investment breakdown by geography*

Client breakdown by region

 Reflects legal domicile of our segregated accounts and pooled funds as at 31 December 2024. Cayman Islands is included in North America. Source: Independent Franchise Partners, LLP.

We encourage our clients to invest with us over a long-term time horizon. The Franchise investment approach aims to invest in companies that earn superior returns on their re-invested capital, compounding shareholder wealth over time. The success of this compounding is best demonstrated over longer time horizons, such as a full market cycle. We do not define the specific length of this time horizon for our clients, but highlight that a full market cycle should be measured from one peak to another, or one trough to another.

Activity

Seeking the views of our clients

We measure our success as a firm through the strength of our long-standing client relationships. We value the trust our clients place in us and seek their feedback to ensure we are meeting their expectations. We seek this feedback through formal update meetings with clients and their investment consultants, as well as through informal discussions and correspondence and our semi-annual webinars. Questionnaires and email queries from clients also provide valuable insights into their needs.

We believe our approach is effective because we have a relatively small number of clients, many of whom have a long tenure with the Firm. This enables regular, transparent communication on both sides.

Additionally, in 2020 and 2024, we engaged a third party to undertake in-depth client surveys to help us better understand our clients' priorities. We discuss these surveys in more detail in Principle 1.

Communicating with our clients

In 2024 we provided the following information on our ESG and stewardship activities to clients:

- Our third ESG and Stewardship Annual Report for the 2023 calendar year. The report describes how we incorporate our proprietary ESG and stewardship framework into our investment process. It also contains several examples of our ESG integration work in practice, including detailed research, engagement and voting case studies.
- Our third Stewardship Code Report, which sets out how we implement the twelve principles of the UK Stewardship Code and describes the key outcomes during 2023.
- Our inaugural TCFD Entity Report and TCFD Product Reports for the 2023 calendar year.
- Proxy voting records published on our public website, updated daily, with a three-month lag.
- Updated ESG integration, stewardship and voting policies.

We also provided the following information on our broader investment activities, which often included additional details of our ESG and stewardship work:

- Semi-annual client webinars that discuss firm updates, investment returns, portfolio activity, deeper-dive topics, and include Q&A sessions.
- Quarterly client investment letters that provide an update on performance and portfolio activity, as well as notable ESG and stewardship developments.
- Meetings with clients and their investment consultants.
- Nine in-depth blog posts on our client portal discussing our investment theses following the initiation of new stock positions.
- Responses to a large number of client and consultant questionnaires.
- Monthly performance review reports that include stock commentary and attribution.

Outcome

We consider our interactions with clients to be valuable opportunities to help us to better serve them. As discussed, we have used a variety of methods to interact with clients, and we think they have been effective in improving our understanding of clients' needs in relation to our stewardship and investment activities.

Clients' feedback has led us to improve the transparency of our ESG and stewardship reporting, as discussed above. This has included the publication of our annual ESG and Stewardship Report, as well as our annual Stewardship Code Report.

We are continuing to discuss our ESG and stewardship activities in meetings and in questionnaires as a result of client interest in these topics.

We also added additional members of the client team in 2021, 2022 and 2023 to help deepen our communication, relationships and on-going interactions with our clients.

We continue to evaluate the effectiveness of our approach to understanding the needs of our clients.

Case study

Helping our clients meet their objectives

In 2020 one of our clients announced a formal commitment to reach net zero emissions by 2038 in its investment portfolio. In 2024 the client hosted an event to support its efforts to meet this commitment and ensure all its managers have appropriate climate risk management processes in place. At this event, we were invited to speak to the client's other asset managers to share our experiences in assessing and managing material climate risks in our portfolios.

Investment approach: Principle 7

Signatories systematically integrate stewardship and investment, including material environmental, social and governance issues, and climate change, to fulfil their responsibilities.

Context

We consider all financially material risks and opportunities, including ESG factors, when assessing the quality of companies in the Franchise portfolios and investment universe, as discussed in Principle 1. Our investment process is founded on bottom-up, in-house research, drawing on a wide range of qualitative and quantitative sources, and supported by proprietary frameworks. We take the same approach to our ESG and stewardship research.

We have developed a proprietary taxonomy of ESG factors that we believe are most likely to impact the long-term financial performance of the companies in the Franchise investment universe. This taxonomy is informed by our long experience of Franchise investing and the specialist expertise of our ESG analyst. It also draws on a range of third-party taxonomies. We believe there is benefit in simplifying the long list of ESG factors offered by third parties to focus on what is truly material for the companies in our investment universe.

Further, by creating our own taxonomy, we have defined ESG factors in a way that complements our Franchise assessment. For example, the social factor "Customer treatment" in our taxonomy encompasses a range of material considerations – such as product safety and data privacy – which impact customer trust and satisfaction. This reminds us that these considerations have an impact on companies' key intangible assets; brand and reputation.

Our Taxonomy for Evaluating ESG Risks

Category	Factor	Description
Environmental	Climate change physical risk management	Evaluation of a company's efforts to mitigate the impact of material climate-related physical risks within its operations and/or supply chain.
	Environmental impact management	Assessment of how effectively a company mitigates material risks and exploits opportunities related to its environmental impact and that of its supply chain.
	Product design/impact	Evaluation of a company's product strategy to capture opportunities and mitigate risks driven by environmental regulation or consumer preferences.
Social	Culture and human capital management	Assessment of how the company manages material risks and opportunities in its direct workforce in order to achieve its business goals.
	Supply chain management	Evaluation of how the company identifies, mitigates and monitors material social risks in its supply chain, such as child labour or worker exploitation.
	Customer treatment	Assessment of the company's approach to topics which impact customer trust and satisfaction, and which may also carry regulatory risk. These include product safety, data privacy and marketing practices.
	Product design/impact	Evaluation of the company's product strategy to capture opportunities and mitigate risks as a result of changes in consumer preferences or regulation driven by societal concerns.
Governance	Board quality	Examination of the board's structure, composition, diversity and skills to evaluate whether it can provide sufficient oversight and challenge to the management team.
	Remuneration alignment	Analysis of the company's remuneration structures and their alignment with business goals and our interests as long-term shareholders.
	Capital allocation	Assessment of management's track record and skills in capital allocation.
	Company ownership structure, shareholder rights and communication	Analysis of how the company's shareholder base might impact its strategic direction and the treatment of minority shareholders. Evaluation of basic shareholder rights, including transparency and shareholder communication.
	Anti-competitive behaviour risks	Analysis of material legal and social risks related to anti-competitive practices, including collusion or price fixing.
	Bribery and corruption controls	Assessment of risks related to bribery and corruption, including policies, oversight and response to historic incidences.

We have also developed a climate risk framework. This framework breaks down the key components of a company's approach to managing climate risk, helping us to identify areas of strength and weakness.

Our Climate Risk Framework

Governance	Companies should demonstrate expertise and accountability for climate issues at board and executive team level. Climate issues should be integrated into the company's strategy and organizational structures in an effective manner.
Disclosure	Companies should disclose material information related to climate change following the recommendations of the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures. Companies should participate in the Carbon Disclosure Project (CDP) as an effective means to provide this information to the investment community.
Targets	Companies should set time-bound emissions reduction goals which manage material regulatory and reputational risks. These goals should encompass a meaningful proportion of Scope 3 emissions.
Products & services	A company's strategy should take into account how climate change might impact its products and services as a result of regulation or a change in consumer behaviour.
Physical risk management	Companies should assess the resilience of their operations and supply chains in the face of physical risks and take effective mitigating action.

In addition, we developed a culture framework in 2023. Experience has taught us that an organisation's culture can materially affect the durability of a company's franchise. Our culture framework brings structure to our analysis of culture and how we discuss our views within the investment team. The aim is to determine the impact of culture on franchise quality and durability, and on our overall investment thesis.

The culture framework has six pillars: adaptability, employee focus, customer focus, long-term orientation, governance quality, and consistency of culture.

Together, these three frameworks provide us with helpful reference points for a diverse set of ESG risks.

Activity

We apply the same ESG integration and stewardship approach across our three portfolios.

Our approach considers financially material ESG risks and opportunities over our clients' long-term time horizon.

We incorporate stewardship and ESG into our investment process through a number of structures, including the ESG taxonomy, climate framework and culture framework discussed above. The additional core components of our approach to ESG incorporation and stewardship are:

- Proprietary research

There are multiple ways financially material ESG considerations feature in our research process.

The investment team produces an investment note on all companies in our portfolios, as well as most companies in our investment universe. In cases where an ESG topic is one of the most important drivers of a company's valuation or the strength of its franchise, the lead investor for the stock incorporates it into their investment research note.

Company investment notes also include an ESG section compiled by the lead investor and ESG analyst.¹² This process acts as a touchpoint for the lead investor and ESG analyst to ensure the investment note captures any financially material ESG considerations.

In addition, where ESG risks are material and complex, the ESG analyst may work with the investor to produce an ESG-focused report. This allows us to examine the ESG risks in even greater depth, and brings a wider range of perspectives and sources into consideration.

Importantly, all investment research, including ESG-focused research, is circulated among the whole investment team for feedback and discussion at our regular investment meetings.

- Interviews with management and board members

Meeting with management and board members is a crucial part of our process. Frequent meetings allow us to test our investment thesis and drive positive change at companies. In our engagements for change, we focus on the material risks and opportunities that may affect a company's long-term financial health and the sustainability of its franchise.

We discuss each company meeting at our weekly investment team meetings and share whether these interactions have impacted our view on the current position size in the portfolio or the valuation at which we are willing to hold the company.

In addition, where our company engagements have an ESG element to them, we record a summary of these engagements in our ESG engagement tracker. This allows us to monitor the progress of our engagements and inform our engagement strategy.

Where appropriate, we take into account a company's geographical context when assessing a company's ESG risks and opportunities. For example, the materiality of different ESG considerations may vary depending on a company's location due to differences in regulation or in vulnerability to physical climate risks.

¹² As at 31 December 2024 an ESG section had been compiled for all portfolio companies.

Our approach to investment controversy

We incorporate ESG into the investment process to gain a more comprehensive perspective of a company's quality and appropriate valuation, not to avoid ESG risks altogether. This means we may see investment opportunities in companies facing some form of ESG-related controversy, or that have room to improve their management of material ESG risks. We think these opportunities can help us deliver attractive long-term investment returns for our clients. However, we will only invest if we have confidence that the ESG risk does not impair the company's competitive advantage, we think the valuation pays us to bear those risks, and that the company can address its challenges. We gain this confidence through our in-depth, proprietary research.

Outcome

Below we set out three examples that describe how material ESG considerations played a role in our ongoing engagement and monitoring agenda with companies held in our clients' portfolios.

Case study 1

Engaging on board composition with a prestige beauty company

We established a position in one of the largest global prestige beauty companies in August 2023, taking advantage of share price weakness caused primarily by challenges in China and Asian travel retail, as well as market share losses in the US.

We think the board and previous management team have partly contributed to the company's challenges. They have been too slow to embrace new distribution channels in the US, and to utilise digital marketing. In addition, the company has not acted quickly enough to cut costs in the face of a slow-down in China and significant disruption to the formerly high growth travel retail market post-Covid.

In our view, the board is too large, too long tenured, and lacks experience in key areas such as digital marketing and technology. We think fresher, younger board members with skills in these areas would be better placed to help steward the company as it implements a turnaround strategy.

As part of our ongoing monitoring and stewardship work, we met with the company several times and communicated in writing via email to engage on its governance over the course of 2024. This included meeting with the Chair and Lead Independent Director.

The Chair was broadly in agreement with our views on the need for a board refresh, and explained that the company would focus on technology and digital marketing skills for future board appointments.

To support our engagement, we withheld our vote from the two longest-serving board members on the ballot for re-election at the 2024 annual general meeting. These individuals had both served on the board for over 18 years.

The company has started to make changes to the board. These include one fewer board member, the Chair switching from an executive to non-executive role, and the son of the founder stepping down. In addition, the company appears to be making positive initial progress with its turnaround strategy.

We will continue to encourage refreshment of the board and closely monitor the progress of the company's turnaround.

Case study 2

Engaging on youth usage with a tobacco company

In 2024 we engaged with a global tobacco company on avoiding youth usage of its nicotine pouch products. The company is an industry leader in transitioning from combustible tobacco products to “smoke-free” categories, which account for a significant proportion of its revenue.

Smoke-free products are significantly less harmful to users than smoking combustible cigarettes. However, they too have social risks; among the most important is youth usage. It is critical the company takes appropriate steps to prevent youth usage in order to avoid a response from regulators or broader society that could hinder adult smokers switching to these products, and to avoid weakening the company’s credibility among regulators.

We became concerned about reports of the popularity of the company’s nicotine pouch product on social media in the US, which could attract younger consumers. This led us to engage three times on this topic with the company in 2024. We discussed it in two meetings with the CFO, and once with the Chief Sustainability Officer. These engagements had a dual aim; demonstrate to the company that we see this as a material risk and want to see effective management, and understand the practical steps the company is taking to manage this risk.

The company has a number of strategies in place to reduce youth usage.

First, the company does not permit the use of social media influencers to market its products. Indeed, it has written to prominent influencers to ask them to stop promoting its product and engaged with social media platforms to seek further support to remove the posts. Second, it is critical to eliminate youth access, and the company makes widespread use of mystery shopper programmes designed to identify retailers that are not adhering to legal age limits. Finally, flavours are an important part of the proposition to entice adult smokers to switch to smoke-free products, and the company has deliberately chosen flavours designed to be less appealing to young people.

Currently, the company’s approach appears to be working. According to the U.S. Youth Tobacco Survey, nicotine pouch use among middle and high school students was less than 2% in 2024, a slight increase from 2023.¹³ Any use of these products by youths is unacceptable, but this increase is notably low when compared with the 70% volume growth of the company’s nicotine pouch product between the first quarters of 2023 and 2024.

Further, youth usage of nicotine pouches is very low when compared with e-cigarette usage at the peak of the U.S. youth vaping scandal in the mid-to-late 2010s, which exceeded 25% of U.S. high school students.¹⁴

We are mindful that we are still in the early stages of the product’s growth in the U.S., but we think the company is taking appropriate action to manage the risk of youth usage. We will continue to monitor and engage with the company on this risk.

Case study 3

Engaging on emissions with an agriculture company

We met with a global seed and crop protection company to discuss its emissions reduction strategy in 2024. We have been engaging with the company on this topic since 2022, including in two previous meetings and a letter.

After initially committing to set an emissions reduction target aligned with the SBTi’s standards, the company subsequently withdrew its commitment and its scope 3 goal. However, the company did keep its scope 1 and 2 emissions reduction targets.

¹³ <https://www.fda.gov/tobacco-products/youth-and-tobacco/results-annual-national-youth-tobacco-survey>.

¹⁴ <https://pmc.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/articles/PMC6865299/#:~:text=In%202019%2C%20an%20estimated%2027.5,use%20of%20any%20tobacco%20product.>

The company claims the SBTi's standards are not appropriate for its business model and that it could have a greater impact on reducing global emissions by investing in developing innovative, yield-enhancing products, rather than by investing in reducing upstream scope 3 supply chain emissions.

We met with the company to discuss its emissions reduction plans and then undertook additional research to verify the company's claims and assess its approach.

Our work indicated that the company's rationale is reasonable.

First, the company is prioritising emissions reduction through yield-enhancement. There is strong evidence that this is in the best interests of the company, its shareholders, and its customers, as well as global emissions goals more broadly. Secondly, the company has improved its communication with investors on this topic and has started to disclose data that demonstrates the emissions savings potential of some of its products. We had encouraged the company to do this in 2022. Thirdly, the company is now working with industry to develop a common standard to measure emissions saved through product use. This is key to the company being able to set a product-related emissions commitment. Finally, the company has started to engage its suppliers to measure their emissions. This is a fundamental step in addressing its supply chain emissions.

Overall, we are cautiously supportive of this approach and will continue to monitor the progress of the company's emissions reduction strategy.

Investment approach: Principle 8

Signatories monitor and hold to account managers and/or service providers.

Activity

We subscribe to a variety of qualitative and quantitative research from a range of over 60 providers including traditional sell-side houses, specialist research firms and external consulting firms. We source data from over 30 different providers on a range of subjects, such as app use. One full-time employee is dedicated to developing and managing our investment tools and data sets, and is supported by the equivalent of five full-time external data resources.

When we select our providers, we favour those who are well resourced, invest behind their product and its development, and provide transparency into their methodology and data collection processes.

Before we contract with a new provider, we undertake an in-depth review of the quality of their services, including an on-boarding checklist. Once a year, the investors and the investment tools team meet to discuss the quality of each provider's products. We provide feedback to our providers during the year and, if we find the provider's products and services do not meet our standards, we will terminate the relationship. We apply the same process to our ESG and stewardship research and data providers.

We are highly selective in our use of third-party ESG ratings and data. It is important that we understand the ratings and data collection methodologies employed by our third parties as these affect their output considerably.

As with all research providers, each year we review the services provided by our proxy voting platform, ISS. Our Compliance Manager and operations team have oversight of the relationship, and they meet with ISS annually as part of the review process. Key considerations when evaluating our proxy voting provider include: its controls and conflicts of interest management; global coverage of our investable universe; quality of research; webinars or events; and account coverage.

Outcome

Overall, our stewardship-related service providers delivered a high-quality service during 2024.

Where we have identified anomalies or required further clarification, we have engaged with the data provider. For instance, in 2024 we engaged with our primary environmental data provider to better understand differences between its scope 3 upstream emissions calculations and individual portfolio companies' own reported emissions.

Engagement: Principle 9

Signatories engage with issuers to maintain or enhance the value of assets.

Activity

We engage with companies for a variety of reasons. These include, to test the core components of our investment thesis over the holding period, to find out more information about the management of key risks, and to push for change in areas where we believe the company could improve. We identify topics for engagement through our bottom-up research process. We prioritise our engagement work based on the financial materiality of the topic, the likelihood of success of our engagement efforts and the size of our holding.

Active stewardship is particularly important for companies that face some form of ESG-related controversy. One of our criteria for investing in companies facing controversy is that we see a route to resolving the issue. Therefore, using our influence to help resolve the controversy is in our clients' best interests.

Our primary method of engagement is via one-on-one meetings with senior executives and with divisional or regional management. We also meet with non-executive directors, such as the chair or senior independent director. This can be a valuable escalation strategy. In 2024 we held over 80 one-on-one meetings with company management teams and board members, and more than 100 meetings with other company representatives or group meetings. The investment team keeps records of these meetings, and each one is discussed at the weekly investment meetings. We also engage by writing formally to company management and boards. This provides a means of setting out our viewpoint to the company in a more formal and detailed manner. We use this method most often when meeting the company has not resulted in progress. In addition, we collaborate with other investors on group engagements where we believe this is likely to be more successful than individual engagement.

ESG is an important component of this active engagement agenda. In 2024 the investment team undertook 42 instances of ESG-focused engagement with 21 portfolio companies.¹⁵ We engaged on ESG topics with 58% of the 33 portfolio companies held firmwide at 31 December 2024. We think this is a significant investment of resource for a firm of our size. The charts on the next page break out this engagement activity.

¹⁵ Reflects engagement with companies in all three Franchise portfolios during 2024 and includes two companies that were no longer held in the portfolios at 31 December 2024.

We apply the same materiality-focused engagement approach across our three portfolios. Our engagement approach is also consistent across different geographies. However, there may be instances where we believe it is appropriate to take the local context into account. This is often the case in matters of governance. For example, while we encourage our Japanese holdings to improve the independence of their boards, we take relevant cultural constraints into account when formulating our engagement goals.

Outcome

Below we set out two engagement examples. Please also refer to the case studies in Principle 7, which include details of further engagements with portfolio companies during the year.

Case study 1

Engaging on compensation with a video game developer

We engaged on compensation in two meetings with a global video game developer in 2024. We met with the head of people, head of reward and a member of the sustainability team.

The company had created an additional long term incentive plan (LTIP) for its executive management team based on three-year total shareholder return (TSR). This represented an incremental payout opportunity over and above the existing base LTIP. The company's rationale for the award was that it was intended to align with the company's new, revitalised business strategy.

We had two main concerns and shared these with the company.

First, we were concerned that the scheme would not act as an effective alignment tool for the CEO, who has a track record of selling shares. Indeed, the CEO's stock ownership is well below what we would expect for a CEO of his 11-year tenure. To counter this, we proposed requiring the CEO to hold these shares for a fixed period of time before he could sell them, and increasing the CEO's share ownership requirements as a multiple of base salary.

Second, we strongly believed that the proposed TSR threshold of 20% at which the award would pay out was too low.

We were pleased when the company increased the TSR threshold to 25% following our discussion. However, we continue to think the terms of the CEO's compensation should be strengthened and we will continue to engage with the company on this topic.

Case study 2

Engaging on new supply chain regulatory risks with a luxury goods company

We engaged with a leading luxury goods company on new supply chain regulatory risks.

In 2024 the European Union introduced new supply chain regulation that aims to ensure companies identify and address adverse human rights risks and environmental impacts in their operations. This regulation could lead to enhanced public scrutiny of the company's supply chain practices, as well as regulatory and legal risks, and will apply in the coming years.

We have been encouraged by the company's efforts in the last few years to bring more sustainability oversight to its sourcing practices. However, the company will likely need to evolve its supply chain practices due to the regulation.

Our research, which has included consulting with industry experts who specialise in human rights risks in supply chains, indicates that the company and its luxury jewellery peers have historically relied on third-party certification schemes as part of their responsible sourcing strategies. These certification schemes have had some success in limiting conflict sourcing but have been weaker at addressing other human rights challenges. This means that certification alone is unlikely to sufficiently address the new regulation's long-term requirements.

In 2023 we met with the company and undertook research to better understand this risk. In 2024 we met with the company again to discuss its progress in meeting the new regulation.

A key takeaway from our 2024 meeting was that the company is still in the crucial data gathering and supply chain mapping stage. This is a challenging task as precious metals and stones have opaque and complex supply chains.

We think that focusing on supply chain mapping is the right approach to build a more robust and hands-on sourcing process in line with the requirements. Our research suggests the company should have time to work through this challenging task. It is likely the regulator will initially focus on disclosure and policy and, in the near to medium term, is unlikely to hold industries that have historically been slow to manage their supply chain to the same standards as more advanced commodities.

We are satisfied the company is taking appropriate action to manage long-term risks that may arise from the new regulation. Nonetheless, we are mindful that the requirements were only finalised in 2024, and both companies and sustainability specialists are still getting to grips with the implications of this wide-ranging legislation. We will continue to monitor the implications for the company.

Engagement: Principle 10

Signatories, where necessary, participate in collaborative engagement to influence issuers.

Activity and outcome

We conduct the majority of our engagement work with companies on an individual basis. We aim to build good, long-term relationships with our portfolio companies. Therefore, we find individual engagement is often the most effective approach to achieve our aims. Further, our concentrated portfolios often mean we own a large portion of a company's market capitalisation, which means we have a reasonable level of influence.

However, there have been several instances in prior years where we have used collaboration with other investors and institutions effectively. Our decision to act collectively depends upon the circumstances of each case, whether we believe it is likely to enhance returns for our clients and whether it would breach any regulatory requirements. In general, we use collaboration as an escalation measure to demonstrate to companies the weight of shareholder support behind an engagement request. When we join collaborative engagements, we do so as an active participant, rather than as a passive spectator.

We did not undertake any collaborative engagements with portfolio companies in 2024.

Engagement: Principle 11

Signatories, where necessary, escalate stewardship activities to influence issuers.

Activity and outcome

We escalate our engagement requests when private, one-on-one dialogue has not been successful in achieving our objectives. We prioritise engagements for escalation based on the materiality of the issue to a company's long-term financial health and the durability of its franchise.

Below we set out the components of our escalation strategy and how frequently each one was employed in 2024. In total, the investment team undertook 42 instances of ESG-focused engagement across 21 portfolio companies.¹⁶ We engaged on ESG topics with 58% of the 33 companies held firmwide at 31 December 2024. We believe this is a significant investment of resource in the context of our concentrated holdings.

The order in which we follow these steps depends on the individual case. In general, our most common escalation techniques are meeting with non-executive directors, issuing adverse votes against directors or resolutions at the AGM, and writing a formal letter.

Voting	There is a strong link between our voting and engagement work. We may use our votes against compensation or directors to reflect our view on compensation or director performance. We may also use voting to signal our dissatisfaction on overall strategy, risk management or other matters. When we vote against company resolutions, we typically notify the company and outline our rationale so management understands the purpose of our adverse vote. We voted against management on 22 proposals by company management, eight of which were related to directors. We also voted against management on three shareholder proposals. We describe how we use our vote to support our engagement requests in case study 1 of Principle 7 and case study 1 of Principle 12.
Meeting with non-executive directors	We aim to form a relationship with the board in the early stages of our holding period as this provides us with a first point of contact should we need to escalate an engagement.

¹⁶ Reflects engagement with companies in all three Franchise portfolios during 2024 and includes two companies that were no longer held in the portfolios at 31 December 2024.

	We held seven meetings with non-executive directors in 2024. We describe how we use engagement with board members to influence corporate behaviour in case study 1 under Principle 7.
Writing a formal letter	A letter enables us to set out our views on complex topics clearly and directly to the company. A letter can serve as the first step of an engagement to notify the company of our intention to escalate an issue, or as an escalation technique in the later stages of an engagement. We did not send any formal letters in 2024. In our 2023 Stewardship Code Report we include examples of how we used formal letters to try to achieve our engagement objectives in the case studies under Principle 7.
Collaborating with other investors	Collaborative engagement can be a useful mechanism for achieving change. Collective action is a powerful tool to demonstrate to companies the importance that shareholders attach to an issue. We did not participate in any collaborative engagement work with portfolio companies in 2024. We discuss our prior collaborative engagement with the CDP in Principle 4.

In addition, in previous years we have also used public statements in the press and proposed shareholder resolutions at company AGMs as further escalation measures.

We apply the same approach to escalation across each of our portfolios. We may vary our approach by geography. For example, we find that escalation methods used in Europe and the US can be seen as excessively aggressive in Japan.

Engagement: Principle 12

Signatories actively exercise their rights and responsibilities.

Context

We see voting as a direct means of holding boards and management accountable, and vote at all company meetings. We aim to align our voting decisions with safeguarding the long-term financial health of our portfolio companies and their franchises.

Our voting policy provides a guiding framework to ensure the consistency of our voting decisions. The policy sets out our principles on common voting matters such as the election of directors, changes to companies' capital structures and governance arrangements, management compensation and shareholder proposals.

Our voting policy

Approach to certain key voting matters

Board of directors

When considering the Board's independence level, diversity and skillset, we assess whether it is able to provide sufficient oversight and challenge given the importance of those mechanisms in capital allocation, strategic direction and risk management. These are factors that are vital to the durability of a franchise.

Executive and director remuneration

When considering remuneration, we look to ensure management is incentivised to favour long-term shareholder returns over short-term success and to focus attention on areas that will enable the company's intangible assets to flourish. We encourage key company executives and directors to have a material multiple of their base compensation invested in company stock to ensure alignment with ordinary shareholders.

Corporate transactions

We evaluate proposals relating to mergers, acquisitions and other special corporate transactions on a case-by-case basis, based on the best interests of our clients.

Auditors

We think regular auditor rotation leads to greater objectivity and fresh perspectives. We therefore require companies to change their independent auditor after a maximum of 20 years – although we encourage every ten years – and require them to hold a tender every ten years.

We follow our voting policy consistently across our three portfolios. We also apply the policy consistently across different geographies in the vast majority of cases. However, there are situations where we must take a company's local context and culture into account as we do in our engagement work, as discussed in Principles 9 and 11.

The lead investor for each stock is responsible for voting decisions, with input from the wider investment team and the ESG analyst as appropriate. We purchase voting research, analysis and recommendations from ISS. We use this to inform our voting decisions. We are not obligated to follow ISS's recommendations.

Segregated account clients can choose whether to direct their own voting activities or whether to delegate the voting decisions to us. We are responsible for all voting decisions for all of the Franchise Partners pooled funds that we manage.

We do not undertake any stock lending activities for any of the Franchise Partners pooled funds. Where segregated accounts choose to undertake stock lending, we may not be able to vote if the shares are out on loan. We monitor the number of shares that are out on loan via ISS.

Our operations team provides oversight over the day-to-day voting process. This ensures that cut-off times for voting decisions are communicated to our investors who are responsible for making the vote and ensuring that all ballots are voted.

We provide our full voting policy on our website.

Activity

On the next page we disclose data on our voting activities in 2024. We voted on all proposals, and on over 99% of the shares that we were eligible to vote. The remaining shares were not voted because they were out on loan by clients.

Outcome

Below we provide four examples that are indicative of our approach to voting.

Case study 1

Vote on directors

We have been engaging with a global media and publishing company for a number of years to maximise shareholder value through structural change.

At the company's 2024 AGM we abstained from voting for all directors to support this important engagement work, despite our view that the management team is managing the business well.

We chose to abstain rather than vote against the directors because the company is undertaking a strategic review that we hope may lead to structural change, and the outcome of the review is still pending.

All of the directors were elected, despite our abstention.

Case study 2

Vote on reincorporation in Ontario

The management team of a Canadian industrial company sought shareholder approval at the 2024 AGM to reincorporate the company under the Ontario Business Corporations Act, moving away from the Canadian Business Corporations Act (CBCA).

Management's rationale for the reincorporation was to avoid the restrictive CBCA requirement that 25% of directors be Canadian residents.

We supported the move and voted in favour of the reincorporation in Ontario as it would enable the company to recruit directors from a global talent pool. This was against the recommendation of ISS. We identified no material changes in shareholder rights between the two jurisdictions, and viewed ISS's concerns as immaterial and ungrounded. We engaged with both the company and ISS to make our assessment.

The company's proposal to reincorporate in Ontario was successful, in line with our vote.

Case study 3

Vote on executive compensation and alignment

We voted in favour of a shareholder proposal for a global pharmaceutical company to adopt a share retention policy for its executives. This was against management's recommendation, but in line with ISS.

The policy would require the company's named executive officers to hold 25% of the equity acquired as part of their compensation until retirement age. This would be in addition to the company's existing share ownership requirements. We voted in favour of this proposal as we think it would bolster long-term management and shareholder alignment.

The shareholder proposal, and our vote, was unsuccessful.

Case study 4

Vote on executive compensation

We voted against a shareholder proposal to amend a leading online travel agent's executive compensation plan. Our vote was in line with management but against ISS's recommendation.

The proposal sought to include instances of negligence in the executive compensation plan. Negligence has a broad definition under US corporate law and we were concerned that including it in the clawback policy could discourage appropriate risk taking by management. Additionally, the company already has a robust clawback provision in place to protect against misconduct.

The shareholder proposal was not approved by a majority of shareholders. This was in line with our vote.

Final comments

We are satisfied with our stewardship and ESG integration efforts in 2024, and their contribution to our goal of delivering attractive, long-term risk-adjusted returns for our clients.

Stewardship plays an important role in our investment process, helping us to better understand companies' financially material risks and opportunities, and encouraging them to better manage those risks where needed. We are mindful that our stewardship aims can take many years to achieve and are not guaranteed, but we remain committed to engaging with companies to protect and enhance our clients' capital.

We will continue to refine our approach to ESG integration and stewardship. In 2025 our priorities are to:

- Undertake further ESG research to strengthen our assessment of ESG considerations and guide our stewardship work.
- Continue to undertake high-quality stewardship on financially material risks and opportunities.
- Further refine our ESG toolkit as needed to support our ESG integration and stewardship work.
- Continue to communicate with clients on our ESG and stewardship efforts, including with the publication of our annual ESG and Stewardship report, our first Stewardship Code report under the 2026 Code, and our TCFD reports.

Independent Franchise Partners, LLP is an independent investment management firm that was established on 15 June 2009. Independent Franchise Partners, LLP manages equity strategies for clients based globally.

Franchise portfolios are concentrated in a limited number of securities and may be concentrated in only a few countries or industries. A concentrated portfolio may be subject to a greater degree of volatility and risk than one following a more diversified approach. Investments denominated in currencies other than the client's base currency carry the risk of exchange rate movements. These movements may have a separate effect, unfavourable or favourable, on gains and losses in the portfolio. Franchise portfolios are designed for investors who understand and accept these risks.

The returns are provided NET of investment advisory fees, are quoted in USD and include the reinvestment of dividends and income. Net returns are shown after the impact of transaction costs and management fees, using the fee that would have been effective at the time. The impact of fees is applied on a daily, time-weighted, geometric basis. Additional costs and other fees may apply (e.g. custody, fund expenses) so actual returns achieved may be lower.

The comparison index is the MSCI World (Net) Index, which is designed to measure the equity market return of developed market countries. Index returns reflect total returns with dividends reinvested net of withholding taxes. The volatility of the index may be materially different from the individual performance attained by a specific investor. In addition, client and fund holdings may differ significantly from the securities that comprise the index. The index has not been selected to represent an appropriate benchmark to compare an investor's performance, but rather is disclosed to allow for comparison of the investor's performance to that of a well-known and widely recognised index. Returns for the Independent Franchise Partners, LLP (IFP) Global Franchise Composite (Hedged), net of fees in USD as at 31 December 2024.

The IFP Global Franchise Equity Composite (Hedged) includes accounts whose objective is to achieve an attractive long-term rate of return and outperform the MSCI World (Net) Index over a full market cycle, which is expected to be between 5 and 10 years. The composite includes both segregated and pooled fund accounts. The total expense ratios for the pooled funds are available upon request. Securities are selected using the firm's proprietary research and analytic tools, which select very high-quality companies trading on attractive absolute valuations from the global equity universe. Portfolios are more concentrated, typically holding 20 to 40 stocks, compared to the benchmark, which reflects the returns of more than 1500 holdings. Composite returns may, therefore, have a lower correlation with the benchmark than a more diversified global equity strategy. The currency exposure of the portfolios in the composite may be hedged for defensive rather than speculative purposes only so as to reduce relative risk, not to enhance returns.
